company orders bespoke software from a developer. The software is delivered late, contains bugs, and doesn't meet the specifications outlined in the contract. This scenario involves both contract law (breach of contract) and potentially tort law (negligence if the developer failed to exercise reasonable care). Questions this might raise and how to approach them using past paper knowledge:

Contract Law: What are the remedies available to the company for breach of contract? Think damages (specific performance). You'd find relevant cases and legal principles in past papers.

Tort Law: Did the developer owe a duty of care to the company? Was this duty breached? What damages might be claimed? Again, reference past papers for relevant case law and principles.

Visual Example: A simple flow chart could illustrate the steps to analyzing such a scenario:

Identify the Contract → Identify the Breach → Assess Remedies (Contract) → Assess Duty of Care (Tort) → Assess Breach of Duty (Tort) → Assess Damages (Contract/Tort)
